

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Seven Times Four.
High-hol daisies and buttercups,
Fair yellow daffodils, stately and tall;
When the wind wakes, how they rock
In the grasses
And dance with the cuckoo-buds, Wander and small!
Here's two bonny boys, and here's Mother's own lassies, Eager to gather them all.

High-hol daisies and buttercups!
Mother shall thread them a daisy chain;
Sing them a song of the pretty hedge sparrow,
That loved her brow, little ones, loved them full full.
Sing "Heart, thou art wide, though the house be but narrow," Sing once, and sing it again.

High-hol daisies and buttercups, Sweet wagging cowslips, they bend and they bow;
A ship sails afar over warm ocean waters,
And happy one missing doth stand at her prow, Oh, bonny brown sons, and oh, sweet little daughters,
Maybe he thinks on you now!

High-hol daisies and buttercups,
Fair yellow daffodils, stately and tall—
A sunshiny world, full of laughter and leisure,
And fresh hearts unconscious of sorrow and grief;
Send down on their pleasure smiles passing
its measure,
God, that is over us all!

Benton—Glover.

The Washington Times of Friday contains the account of a wedding of interest in Richmond, near which is located "Tuckahoe," the former home of the Randolphs.

The bride mentioned is the daughter of Captain Thomas Mann Randolph Thompson, of Southport, N. C., a granddaughter, several times removed, of Richard Randolph, of Roanoke, Va. Before her marriage on Wednesday evening last, at the Richmond, in Washington, to Surgeon Frederick Benton, of the United States navy, she was the widow of Lieutenant H. D. Glover, also of the navy.

The parlor of the Richmond, where the ceremony took place, were effectively decorated with American flags. Colonel George Barnet, of the United States Marine Corps, was best man. The groom-smen were Captain Harry Lay, of the Marine Corps, and Dr. Paul McDonald, of the navy.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Colonel Thomas Mann Thompson, Jr., was a gown of Japanese gauze, embroidered in cherry blossoms.
At the wedding supper, decorations were in pink and white roses.

The honeymoon is being spent North.
Dr. and Mrs. Benton will afterward go to New York, where the groom, who is a son of Dr. S. H. Benton, of Brooklyn, is in charge of the naval hospital.

Mrs. Mayhoff Hostess.

Mrs. Carl von Mayhoff, who has been abroad, has returned and is again the hostess of Monticello, the beautiful Virginia home of her brother, the Hon.
Jefferson Levy.

She will entertain the Keweenaw Club at Monticello on the afternoon of September 20th. Wednesday afternoon the club met with Miss Fannie Long, of "East Belmont," who dispensed delicious hospitality. Among those playing were Miss McGee, Miss Watkins and Mrs. Brockbrough, of Richmond.

Monday Evening German.

At the Monday evening German of the Jefferson Park Hotel this week Mr. Albert Stuart Bolling was leader with Miss Daisy Boykin as his partner. The Charlotterville Progress says in complimentary mention of Miss Bolling, Miss Boykin is an unusually graceful dancer and was always the center of an admiring group, vying with each other for her favor.

Richmonders miss beside Miss Boykin included Miss Elsie Boykin, Miss Cordella Watkins, Mrs. G. L. Fauterley and Mrs. R. H. Norment.

Personal Mention.

Miss Eleanor Clare Dinneen, the attractive young guest of Miss Rebecca Walker, of Park Avenue, will return on Saturday to her home in Baltimore. Miss Dinneen is the daughter of Mrs. John H. Dinneen, formerly of this city, and has enjoyed this summer an extended trip through the Virginias.

Miss Margaret Pickett Stokes is now in the mountains of Pennsylvania, where she will remain during September.

Miss Jessie R. Pondleton has returned to the city after having spent the summer in New York and Asbury Park.

returned home after several weeks spent in the mountains of Virginia.

Irene, of Hinton, and Mrs. Brannon, of Charleston, W. Va., are visiting Mr.
W. H. Lowry, of No. 2115 Venable Street.

friends in Richmond and Chesterfield, has returned to her home in Crofton.

Mrs. Richard Allen and children, also the guests of relatives near Crofton.

Sue Pollard, who have been guests of Mrs. O. P. Smoot, of Bowling Green,
will remain during September.

Mr. Carl Brandt, of Hot Springs is the guest of Mr. Robert Ahot, at his home on Floyd Avenue.

Mr. Frank Moore is spending some time at his old home, near Sparta, Va.

Misses Marian and Julia Ryland are guests of the Misses Broadbush, at Bowling Green.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Westbrook, of Drewryville, Va., have issued invitations

ROBIN REDBREAST.

BY WILLIAM ALLINGHAM.

William Allingham was an Irish poet of distinction, who in the Irish customs service for nearly thirty years, and for some years conducted Fraser's Magazine with marked ability. He was born in Ballyshannon in 1824, and died at Hampstead in 1889.

GOOD-BY, good-bye to summer!

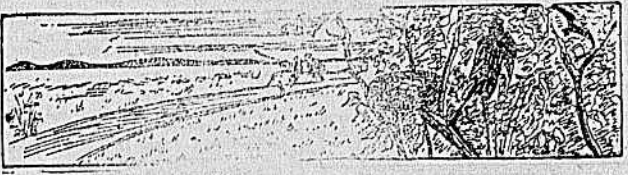

For summer's nearly done;
The garden smiling faintly,
Cool breezes in the sun;
Our thrushes now are silent,
Our swallows flow away—
But Robin's here in coat of brown,
And scarlet breast knot gay,
Robin, Robin Redbreast,
O Robin dear!
Robin sings so sweetly
In the falling of the year.

Bright yellow, red, and orange,

The leaves come down in hosts;
The trees are Indian princes,
But soon they'll turn to ghosts;
The leathery pears and apples
Hang russet on the bough;
Its autumn, autumn, autumn late
'Twill soon be winter now.
Robin, Robin Redbreast,
O Robin dear!
And what will this poor Robin do?
For pinching days are near.

The fireside for the cricket,

The wheatstack for the mouse,
When trembling night winds whistle
And moan all round the house.
The frosty ways like iron,
The branches plumed with snow—
Alas! in winter dead and dark,
Where can poor Robin go?
Robin, Robin Redbreast,
O Robin dear!
And a crumb of bread for Robin,
His little heart to cheer.

FUSION WINS IN NORFOLK AGAIN

This suggestion was received with jeers and derisive laughter.

Mr. Sebrall Talks.

John J. N. Sebrall, Jr., who appeared as counsel for the Fusionists, was seen at Murphy's last night and asked if he had anything to say concerning the decisions of the committee.

"I anticipated the decision of the committee," he replied. "I was actually informed by a prominent member of the committee that the committee would decide to shut his eyes and ears to the evidence and argument and after it was over, would say, 'Who is my friend?'
and vote for him."

"After the committee had decided in the Amherst case, the Norfolk committee was dead and had no jurisdiction in the case, its successor having been elected."
Witness was not cross-examined by counsel for the other side. Questioned by Judge Duke, witness admitted that he knew the "Fusionists" were holding primaries in certain precincts in the county, and yet he sent his returns in to Mr.
Ellyson without warning the others.

Witness declared that he and the chairman of the city of Portsmouth could not agree as to who was the senatorial nominee.

Merits of the Case.

When this testimony was given, Judge Duke moved to go into the merits of the case, it being plain that the State Committee had jurisdiction. Mr. Sebrall declared he was not ready with his evidence, and could, therefore, not proceed with the case.

The committee voted first that the body has jurisdiction, the question being divided. Judge Duke then moved to proceed with the merits of the case and to count all the votes of Norfolk for State senator. Notice of contest as to Norfolk county was read from Mr. John C. Nelmyer, and a protest from Mr. S. T. Montague against disturbing the count in Norfolk county.

Mr. Sebrall appealed earnestly for time in which to present his defense, and said if the committee forced him into a day unprepared he would have to decline to make any appearance. Mr. Buchanan, of the committee, spoke along the same line, and declared that the specifications had only been served on Mr. Sebrall's client on September 8th, and that he had not had time to prepare his defense.

He thought it unfair to force Mr. Se-brall to trial on one day's notice.

Mr. Montague Protests.

Judge Duke thought there had been an agreement between the parties that the trial should go on to-day, and Mr. G'illam took the same ground. Mr. S. T.
Montague, one of the senatorial candidates, protested against a trial when he had had no opportunity to prepare his case. Secretary Watson, of the Portsmouth Committee, read from the minutes of that body to show that it was understood the contest would come to the State Committee at this time.

Judge Duke said it was trifling with the time of the committee to come back here to deal with a case that could easily be settled now. He moved that the Deep Creek vote and that of the other precincts counted for general offices, be counted for State senator, without procedure to the candidates for the House of Delegates. This was adopted.

Mr. S. T. Montague arose, and amid great cheering, declared he would return to his home and work for the success of the ticket, though he had not received the honor he had sought at the hands of his party.

Sub-Committee.

Mr. Whitehead moved the appointment of a subcommittee to canvass the face of the returns in Norfolk county, and to report to the full committee.

Mr. Sebrall, holding in his hand a lengthy typewritten document, declared that they were the specifications which no one had and an opportunity to examine. He protested against precipitate action, and appealed in the interest of his client. He said he was not ready and Judge Duke replied: "You should have been ready."

Mr. Sebrall appealed for time for Mr.
Sebrall and his clients.

He said the committee was about to determine without evidence a contest involving a Republican on one side and a Straight Democrat on the other for county clerk. Colonel Marshall, Colonel Button and others, denied this, but Mr. Sebrall said it was at least a mooted question.

The senator grew eloquent in his appeal for fair play, and said in simple Justice Mr. Sebrall should have time to protect the interests of his clients. He could not vote to declare any man the nominee of his party on ex parte testimony.

"Should Have Fair Chance." Now, gentlemen," he asked in conclusion, "in a Democratic household, should not we give these gentlemen a fair chance to make their defense?"

Judge Watkins did not think there was any contest here. The committee was simply a canvassing board. In his judgment, and the committee should take the position as to the validity of the returns of the lower committee having been unable to perform this function. "Norfolk county has the most unsettled state of society on the face of the earth," said the judge, amid laughter, "outside of Russia or Japan."

He said that the gentlemen there could not even settle themselves.

Judge Duke made a ringing speech, in which he contended that Mr. Sebrall had not brought himself within the rule of law entitling him to a continuance.

Colonel Whitehead called the pending question on Mr. Whitehead's motion for a subcommittee to canvass the returns sent up by the "Straightouts," and it was adopted.

At this point Mr. Sebrall gathered up his papers and asked permission to retire.
The matter was over. The "Fusionists" had won "hands down."

Wanted to Go Home.
The young Norfolk attorney struggled against great odds for his clients. He had the support and assistance of Messrs.
Sears, Williams and Downing, now and then, but an overwhelming majority of the committee wanted to get through and go home, and they saw no way in wea-rying themselves over the details of an ugly fight in Norfolk county.

The chair named Messrs. Whitehead, Duke and Wallace to count the returns, and the committee took a recess in order to await the report.

The committee reconvened at 3:15 o'clock P. M., and Mr. Whitehead reported on Norfolk county, which was as follows:
Martin, 1,448; Montague, 778; Swanson, 1, 303; Willard, 284; Mann, 4,021; Ellyson, 1,601; Cabell, 538; Anderson, 1,021;

House—Jones, 810; Coleman, 848; Parker, turns, but had declined to actually take him, because he was at the railroad station, and could not find a hotel to lodge himself with an amount of returns.

Witness told of his meeting with the Portsmouth committee, and said due notice had been given of the time of the meeting of the committee.

Meeting Held.
On August 28th, a regularly advertised meeting of the committee was held for the purpose of hearing contests, and there was no response. He had never thrown any obstacles in the way of contests, nor had he ever declined to call a meeting of his committee for this purpose. Witness admitted that he had sent in the returns to Mr. Ellyson before those of the Fusionists were tendered.

Judge Duke contended that, as in the Amherst case, the Norfolk committee
case, its successor having been elected.

Witness was not cross-examined by
counsel for the other side. Questioned by Judge Duke, witness admitted that he

Let Common Sense Decide

Do you honestly believe, that coffee sold loose (in bulk), exposed Official Vote.

Mr. Ro. Gilliam, from the subcommittee, now reported complete the official vote of the entire State for United States senator and State offices, and it was as follows: Martin, 4,691; Montague, 3,307; Swanson, 2,533; Mann, 20,491; Willard, 2,633; Ellyson, 2,633; Cabell, 1,303; Anderson, 4,021; Williams, 2,077; Eggleston, 5,058; Hulvey, 2,123.

The chair then declared those having the highest number of votes for each position the party nominees amid applause.

Mr. Sebrall addressed the committee briefly at this point. He said he had appeared before the committee in the interest of the Democratic party in Norfolk county as he understood it.

It had been admitted that "Fusion" existed in Norfolk county, and Democrats all over the State, except in Norfolk county, had declared this alliance between Democrats and Republicans.

He spoke of the little
